Ahh. Sorry for the lack of signature. I'm on to many computers. I used to work for them in another division. I don't know the tax side of the business. But, in the past six months there has been a slew of issues for several counties. I won't rehash what was in that mail. However one of those links includes an assessor that almost fell under a criminal probe due to software problems.

There doesn't appear to be such bad press before they were bought out by Thoma Bravo. And I don't know the exact issues your county has had. I would suggest if problems continue that you try to ascertain the number of programmers and support staff they have to determine if something has changed over the past 18 months. That's when the buyout happened.

I'd also recommend conferring with other counties that are having issues if they continue.

I estimate more than $9 billion worth of parcels has had to be de-cert or other issues due to software errors. That's a lot for just six months.

Whenever there is so many issues including audits that could have resulted in a criminal investigation, and those issues happen in such a short period, a red flag has to go up.

I'm not actively monitoring news for any new issues. I contacted you because I was monitoring them earlier.

I recommend you watch the videos at <http://www.youtube.com/managroan> to see some of the language being used by officials in other counties. Though I think they were in the e-mail I sent.

thx
